WELCOME TO HOPE ISLAND

Hope Island Marine State Park is a 106-acre marine camping park on the western side of the state in Mason County, Puget Sound. This quiet island is located between Steamboat Island and the southwest end of Squaxin Island and is reachable only by boat. Covered with old-growth forests and saltwater marshes, the park features a 1.5-mile long beach and more than 8,500 feet of saltwater shoreline.

Visitors may explore the 2 miles of trails, including a self-guided interpretive trail. The park also offers a variety of recreational activities, including picnicking, beach exploring, clamming, fishing and hiking.

Overnight accommodations

The park offers eight campsites. In addition, there is one Cascade Marine Trail site available to those arriving to the park by human- or wind-powered watercraft. Open fires are not permitted on the island. Water is not available, but two vault toilets are provided. All campsites are first come, first served.

Park history

Hope Island was named by Commander Charles Wilkes for one of his crew in 1841. Wilkes was engaged in the mission of charting Puget Sound. The Island was acquired in 1990 from the Munn Estate.

Park amenities and facilities

Hope Island Marine State Park offers the following amenities and facilities to make your visit more enjoyable and comfortable:

- Four unsheltered picnic tables (first come, first served)
- Two vault toilets
- Five moorage buoys, three on the west side of the island and two on the east side
- All park visitors must practice “pack-it-in, pack-it-out” principles
- Dogs are not allowed on Hope Island due to sensitive wildlife areas
