Park History

In 1805, Lewis and Clark stopped here enroute to the Pacific Ocean. The park acquired its name from a windsurfer who used to frequent the beach when the sport was in its infancy. Doug, more formally known as former doctor Doug Campbell, still lives in the Gorge and owns a business in Hood River, Oregon.

Park Amenities and Facilities

Doug's Beach State Park offers the following amenities and facilities to make your visit more enjoyable and comfortable:

- Ten unsheltered picnic tables and tables, available first come, first served.
- Parking is along the south side of SR 14. There is a pedestrian walkway behind the vehicle-parking area, fenced from passing trains. Visitors access the beach down a paved path with railroad-crossing arms and signals. Picnic tables and shade trees line the shore.

Doug's Beach State Park is a 400-acre, undeveloped day-use park located along the Columbia River. This is one of the premier windsurfing sites in the Columbia Gorge and is rated for advanced sailors. Each year, windsurfers from around the world flock to the park and the Columbia Gorge turns into a festival of colors on the water with the vibrant designs and features of the windsurfing boards.
