You are the extra eyes and ears in the campground and should feel comfortable communicating with park staff and the ranger if you see something that doesn't seem right. You may be asked to open or close the park if there is a lack of park staff coverage. If you like to stay busy; parks are the way to go, there is always something to do.

HOST DUTIES: The Mount St. Helens Visitor Center is a welcoming and warm place to host. For folks with a passion for education, customer service, and connecting visitors to the great outdoors this is a great fit for you. The host priority is to assist at the Information desk; greeting visitors, answering questions, and providing trip planning advice. They will also help to answer the phone as needed and have computer access to check conditions within the Mount St. Helens National Volcanic Monument. The host will have plenty of guidance from the Interpretive staff, as well as access to our library and other educational resources. The Mount St. Helens Visitor Center can be a busy and fast-paced environment, with over 600 visitors/day in the summer months. We also have an active volunteer crew in partnership with the Mount St. Helens Institute (MSHI), so this is a wonderful opportunity for collaboration and learning.

Beyond helping at the information desk, the host is asked to assist with light cleaning (sweeping after large groups, cleaning windows, sanitizing exhibits, and dusting displays) as well as basic landscaping around the building. This could include litter pick-up, dead-heading rhododendrons and ferns, raking, blowing, moss removal, storm debris removal, and other tasks as assigned. This host assignment is a combination of indoor and outdoor tasks and can change on a weekly basis depending on area operational needs. At times it can be challenging to earn the required 28 hours/week at the center, so the Interpretive host often helps with the campground duties at Seaquest. The center is a communal space with interns, seasonals, volunteers and other staff sharing the responsibilities of running the visitor center- so we ask folks to maintain a team-mentality.
